GEORGE O. BARNES

GOD IS LOVE AND NOTHING ELSE

PRaise THE LORD.

INDEPENDENCE, KY., Oct. 17, 1887.

DEAR INTERIOR:—A very happy and useful week in our pleasant ministry has been from October 10 to 17. The past seven days with my dear friend and brother George D. D. and his charming family, would, alone, have made it a "happy" episode in our lives. Add to that a first-class meeting and the conjunction is one that an evangelist can more fully appreciate than others.

We left Frankfort in the morning, by that same of discomfort, an early train. Our dear Miss Laura paid us the highest compliment a hostess can offer, by having a hot breakfast ready for us, though we had promised against it the night before. We enjoyed it, all the same. Blessings without number, be on her head, whose hospitality can bear this strain without a murmuring look, even nay, with a genuine smile of satisfaction and delight.

Early as it was, a detachment of "like faithful" were there to see us comfortably off. May their names figure in the "book of remembrance" for this unsolicited act of courtesy, as unexpected as it was grateful. Gen. Hewitt telegraphed for a second breakfast at 10 o'clock and accompanied us that far, on his way to Louisville—breakfasting with us. A brief halt at that junction town, in a drizzling rain, revealed nothing of special interest, except the gas-bagging operation, where a temporary stoppage was caused, by the sticking of their 75 feet long steel drill, at the depth of 1200 feet and their inability, thus far, to get it out. One month has been consumed in abortive attempts to grapple it. Rather a heavy "break," if they are obliged to begin at the top and enlarge the orifice till they reach the seat of the disease—as some experts believe.

Our trip returned to a pouring rain, through which we shuffled, post-haste, on our arrival at Gen. L. L. S. station, on the Short Line. The depot has lately been extinguished by fire, that declined to be self-extinguished, and an old freight car is doing service as a receptacle for baggage and merchandise. The nearest store does duty as a passenger depot, but no one would wait there, for reasons appearing further on; the gentlemen at the store kindly did for us as the "barbarous people" at Melitts did for Paul and his party—showing us no little kindness, and kindling a fire, because of the present rain, and because of the cold. After a little talk, a young man, dressed in a waterproof, caught a handy horse in a near pasture and rode off to Independence, 25 miles, through the down-pour, to hear a note to our good Brother D. D. and his family.

"Dear Yoric!—Here we are, but where are thou? Come, speedily, to the relief of your stranded troupe."

Our youth disappeared in a center thru the dashing rain-storm; I got a London Morning Post reserved for extremities; Mrs. E. placed herself in her darling "correspondence," on paper and envelopes borrowed from the express agent; George sank into infantile slumber (being the baby) and Mamma nursed her, being the highest form of delight known to her maternal nature. In an incredibly short time "Yoric" appeared upon the scene, laden with wraps; three carriages and two horse wagons in attendance; heavy, too, with remorse, though as innocent as a babe of the "situation," seeing that my letter announcing the train we would come by, lumbered in, tranquilly, upon the Lexington box, an hour after we were comfortably bestowed under George's hospitable roof. I had forgotten that Independence was off the road and needed about the same time for a letter to reach its primitive seclusion as is required to get one to New York or Boston. But George "couldn't get over it," though we had come before, on an evening train, and he fully expected us to do the same this time. He blushed himself for not guessing it and being there anyhow. We had much ado to calm his throes of self-reproach. The rain held up as we departed from the store, and we made the trip to our quiet village most pleasantly, to find Mrs. D. and the children waiting for us with loving welcome.

We had a good rest before the evening meeting, which was what we aimed at by our early Frankfort start; and escaped our former experience, when we bolted into church, half an hour behind time, to preach to a tired congregation, ourselves fagged by the journey and hungry withal; for supper, that could not be eaten till after meeting. The second experience was "a bad beginning with a good ending"—far preferable to the first; where our comfort was at the start and our trials at the close of the journey. A lesson in this, for life's voyage. Far better the trials to begin with, winding up in the radiance of the perfect day, than ease now, with "a fearful looking-for" of trouble at the dreadful close. Give me, ever, my "tribulation" at the "starting point" instead of the "goal."

Dear "Yoric!" as we call "our George," began here four years ago. Leaving his law practice three years before that, he essayed to evangelize, with the burden of a family of young children to bear, in addition to the selfishness of humanity. His limited private patrimony was soon expended. It is not to the credit of his friends that he staggered along, tattered, in that fearful struggle against odds, while doing his level best to preach to others the gospel that had freed him. It is the one unhealed gash, I say, here, against the dear saint, whose self-sacrifice towards me has long since been buried and forgotten. I cannot quite forgive them yet for letting this noble heart break, while they looked coldly on. Yes, brethren, sisters, you know you deserve every word of this, and more. Here was the only man in Kentucky who preached the gospel you loved, and you allowed him to be deliberately "starved out" before your eyes. If that don't "trip you up" when settlement day comes, it will be solely because "God is Love and Nothing Else." Once more the LORD gives us an opportunity to repair this wrong. "I wish that through ignorance you did it, brethren and sisters." Therefore the door of return stands open. It is a "door of hope" for you, I mean, with intense interest, to see what you will do, as this tried and true man goes forth, still handicapped with a family in attendance, but more resolved than ever to "go preach" now that he has a far more filled with a brimming gospel of "God is Love and Nothing Else." God will care for him through some one, I am sure; but will it be through you, who owe everything to this gospel, or through stranger hands the help will come? I remember my own case and rather tremble for the result. And yet I will hope for the best. "I was hungry and ye gave Me nothing; thirsty and ye gave Me no drink" was spoken in those who said with a start of surprise, "Lord, when saw we Thee in need and did not supply it?" And He answered, "Remember how these My brethren lacked and ye minis-tered not to them."

Now, dear ones, if these plain words of love, instead of stirring up, then you are not the people I look for, and I want to find you out, if I have been deceived in you. I do not believe I have been so misled in my estimate of your character, and will not believe anything but the best of you.

To return to Independence, God provided this refuge for his sorely tried servant, when he found it impossible to "go preach" any longer, and here with uncomplaining love he set to work to do what he could. To-day one of the prettiest village churches in Kentucky, paid for, costing $9,000, stands as a monument of the unwearied zeal of the good man, whom the devil could not "get down," but who, still toiling in poverty, has enriched others with the precious gospel; adorned this village with a model church; and who stands "head and shoulders" for quiet, unostentatious influence, above any village pastor I know. He has another station at N. Fairmount—a suburb of Cincinnati, where we go next to hold services. There, too, his grand life of single faith and goodness has told upon one of the toughest of the great, but civil dependencies, and it will not be long before a church supplants the "Dance Hall" where the services are now held.

One of the happiest weeks of our lives we have spent here. The village of Independence is one of the county seats of Kentucky. Covington is the other. The situation is glorious. On about the highest point in the county the panorama of field and woodland, on every side, is simply exquisite. In autumn tints the October glory of it is surpassing. It fills the eye and reads the heart to look, and look and look!

Here too the house was jammed on Sunday, till no place was found for the traditional "just one more." The ladies fed 600 hungry people again; as twice before, when we were here, less than a year ago. Wonderful ways have these housekeepers of doing such things with such quiet grace that no bustle or flurry marks the work they do. God bless the generous hearts in Independence. We love them dearly.

Ever in Jesus, GEO. O. BARNES.

At Montgomery, Alabama, there was presented to Mrs. Cleveland a jewel case, in the form of a bale of cotton, eight inches long and of silver, its sides oxidized silver representing the bugging of the bale, while frosted spots bore a striking resemblance to the snow cotton bursting from its confinement.

A truly dignified citizen will sit up all night rather than display his limbs and his sock feet in climbing into an upper berth on a sleeping coach. "How could a lady do that?" asked a dismayed feminine passenger on seeing the gymnastics of an upper berth male passenger who was retiring early.

—Mrs. Fannie Elmiston's goods were not auctioned last Saturday. Some of them were put up but no one bid on them.

—Mr. James Gammons, of Peachersville, has succeeded Mr. Dwight Hardin as clerk in Mr. J. W. James' store.

—For the space of two months this is the first report we have met in without recording either a marriage or death.

—The members of the band, together with several of our ladies, will give an entertainment at the College hall in about three weeks, to help pay for their musical instruments.

—Mr. W. P. Tatum's new, recently built, showing Mr. J. E. Butler several nights ago. A pistol he was handling was off and missed Mr. Butler's body only a hair's breadth.

—At this writing we are enjoying a visit at the pleasant country home of our cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Thurman. They expect soon to move to Garrard county. We wish they could find it to their interest to move to our town.

—Miss Esmeralda Stuart has returned from Danville. Mr. Joe Rinehart and wife have been visiting Mrs. M. C. Williams at Mt. Vernon. Mr. John Curtis, of Garrard, was Mr. Harrison Thurman's guest this week. Mrs. Aggie Rinehart has returned from a pleasant visit to her cousin, Mrs. Anna Feland, near Stanford.

—The entertainment at the Christian church last Wednesday night was liberally patronized. The exercises of the evening were composed of music by the band, piano music, songs, recitations and select readings. "The Ram Mania" was recited by Miss Maggie Davis in a clear and forcible manner; the several songs by Miss Lillie Toxton were highly appreciated and enjoyed; a humorous selection was read by Miss Alice Warr; little Henry Fish and Lockie Dalton very sweetly sang, "I'll Write a Letter to Papa," "The New Church Organ" and "The Moneyless Man" were recited respectively by Misses Annie Fish and Lula Stuart in a very creditable style and "In the Starlight," sung by Mrs. Joe Rinehart and Miss Fish, was a very enjoyable part of the exercises. Other parts of the entertainment are deserving of praise, but space forbids a more extended notice.

A JOCKEY'S PAY.—A Jockey's pay is good. McLaughlin gets $10,000 a year from Dwyer Brothers, Isaac Murphy gets $10,000 a year from Lucky Baldwin, Fitzpatrick gets $8,000 a year from the Fairfax stable and Garrison gets $8,000 a year from Captain S. S. Brown; others get paid in proportion, according to their abilities. All these riders are allowed to accept outside mounts; that is, they are allowed to ride for any one when they are not wanted by the stables to which they are engaged. For these outside mounts they are paid $25 if they win and $10 if they lose. But very often when they win a big race they get much larger fees. McCarty got $3,000 for winning the Brooklyn Handicap on Dry Monopole, and last year Fitzpatrick was paid $5,000 for winning the Suburban on Troubadour for Captain Brown. Some of the jockeys spend the money they make as fast as they get it, but others save it and many of them are now very rich men.

"The wickedness of those politicians who seek to stir their ambitious schemes by engendering hate among a generous people is fast meeting exposure, and yet there is and should be an insistance upon a strict adherence to the settlement which has been made of disputed questions and upon the unreserved acceptance of such settlement. Against this I believe no business consideration should prevail and I firmly believe that there is American fairness enough abroad in the land to insure a proper and substantial recognition of the good faith which you have exhibited."—[From Cleveland's Montgomery Speech.]

The House of Hanover is not likely soon to be without an heir. Anne was the mother of 17 children. Victoria has mothered nine. The Princess of Wales, the Empress of Russia and the Princess of Lorne have large and increasing families, while as for the Princess of Rutenburg, which is seemingly just the other day that she went into the family business and the cable this morning announces the arrival of her second child.—[Louisville Times.]

Dr. J. Breck Taubee, who arrived in Mt. Sterling last week to visit his sick brother, made the trip of 2,300 miles from his far away Western station in 73 hours, probably as fast time for that distance as was ever made by a traveler. Dr. Taubee is located at Fort Defiance, Wyoming Territory and is the Government Surgeon of the Navy's Indians. He is a brother of Pres.—[C. J.]

A toy balloon sent up from a town in Kentucky about the 1st of September was found the other day in a field in New York State, where it had just alighted, and the farmer's wife at once decided that Providence had sent her a new bustle.

MT. VERNON, ROCKCASTLE COUNTY.

—One marriage during the week and one application filed for divorce.

—Jack Adams, of Madison, bought of James Purcell a horse for $85.

—Tom Lively and Miss Ophelia Towner were married at West Thursday last.

—The first coal mines opened on the K. C. extension will begin shipping this week.

—The news of Napoleon's Peace, it is said, will take their place during the course.

—All of the stores and four months' public schools have been taught out and closed.

—Ch. Williams' Pantomime Co. showed to a fair audience at the Court house Wednesday night and will appear again to night, Thursday.

—P. E. Strick has 22 acres of corn that made 40 bushels per acre. He raised 1,000 pounds of good tobacco on the same farm on 11 acres of land.

—The court of claims was held Monday and Tuesday, but our friend, who promised to give us a report of the proceedings failed to show up in time for this issue.

—Mike Ferrin, the new foreman at the Wildlife quarry, had a warrant issued against it discharged quarrymen who had threatened to lynch him. They had to give bond for their good behavior.

—The local rains in the mountains during the summer were much more frequent than in the blue-grass region and the corn crop is much better here this season than in that usually more favored region.

—"Uncle" Jim Cummins, who has fought through two wars, was in town Tuesday and on request sang "Forty Years Ago." J. W. Nesbitt has rented of H. S. Dean the residence and store house recently owned by S. W. Parrie. John McChord, the newly appointed Stock Claim Agent, was here Tuesday and claimants were well pleased with his manner of settling claims.

—During the wildest excitement last week Joe Purcell led three of his neighbors on a "wild goose" chase by using a pumpkin stalk in making noise resembling those made by that shy animal. After having them follow him several miles over mountains and valleys, preceded by their dogs, Purcell concluded it was getting too warm for him, when he threw down his extemporized imitation and led to the rocks for safety.

—S. W. Parrie, who traded his store and other property at this place to H. S. Dean, of Vandalia, Ill., a short time since for a farm near that place, returned here Tuesday and had an attachment issued against Mr. D., stopping him from disposing of the stock of goods remaining on hand, claiming that he, Mr. D., had not complied with the contract entered into, i. e. to place Mr. P. in possession of the Illinois farm. The parties concerned agreed to let the goods be sold at auction on the 25th and 26th and let the sheriff hold the proceeds until the matter is settled by law.

—Sam Bardsley's eulogy in the Courier Journal of Gen. W. J. Landrum, of Lancaster, finds an echo from the mountains. All classes, regardless of politics, join in saying no better official was ever placed in charge of a revenue office in the State of Kentucky. It is not necessary to call attention to the many and willing accommodations rendered to those in need of them. While he was strict in the enforcement of the laws, he never put a man to trouble on technicalities, and only when a clear and intentional violation of the law was shown to have taken place did he burden the government with the expense of a prosecution of the case. When suit was brought forth by him a conviction generally followed.

—Curtis and Wm. O. Eschkal, arrested with others on the charge of kukuizing, waived examination and were held to answer any indictment that may be found by the next grand jury. "The mills of the gods grind slowly, but grind exceedingly fine," and it will yet be shown in this county, where rank prejudice has run riot for the last ten years, that the democratic party is not responsible for all the midnight outrages that have occurred, as has been preached by the opposite party from the house-tops from the time the smoke cleared away after John Brown's raid at Harper's Ferry. The reason for whipping and mistreating these three inoffensive women, whose character is above reproach, as was shown at the examining trial from the evidence of a number of the best citizens in the community in which they reside, by a party of men under the circumstances, is not known, but we suppose the trials in the circuit court will bring out the facts connected with the affair. It has been mentioned in this column before that all the parties charged with this offense and led for trial are republicans. That old bloody-shirt bowl, usually sent forth after such occurrences in this county, charging the other party with these outrages, is conveniently silenced by those interested.

There were three things which Thomas Jefferson distinctly claimed for himself. He wanted them inscribed on his monument. They are as follows: "The author of the Declaration of Independence; of the statute of Virginia for religious freedom; the father of the University of Virginia." On no monument was ever inscribed prouder words in praise of any man.

THE more we see of the doings of courts and juries the more we are convinced that the law offers no protection to a peaceable citizen. The officers are afraid to do the duty they have sworn they would and the juries are either too ignorant, cowardly or venal to do theirs. It is only the law-breaker who is protected by the law. He can murder or commit other heinous crimes at will and when brought to trial, if he ever is, he can, with the aid of sharp lawyers, who know how to work the 20 challenges for all they are worth, secure either a jury that will acquit or at most hang themselves. The Commonwealth is a ways under disadvantage. The judge usually rules in favor of the accused. She has but five challenges of jurors and is practically at the mercy of the defendant after they are exhausted. Every doubt must inure to the benefit of the prisoner, and it after all these safeguards are thrown around him, a case of willful murder is made out, there is a hung jury, or an abortion of a verdict, letting him off with what is equal to no punishment. Then he has every advantage in the matter of counsel, while the State often has to rely on some worthless stick of a man, who could not support himself at his profession but for her help. With all these advantages it is no wonder that murder and other crimes hold high carnival and that the murderer is the most privileged citizen of a community. Human life is the cheapest of any kind in Kentucky and will continue so till a radical change in the administration of justice is effected or the people, patient and long suffering, rise in their might, and right the wrongs daily placed upon them. We die like to say it, but it is true and a pity it is that it is true, that there is absolutely no protection for a law-abiding man in the law. He must look to himself alone for protection and do with the shot-gun what the law promises, and what he pays for its support to do for him, but fails so short of doing.

HARRISBURG continues at the front. Another murder, the second in ten days, occurred in a bar room there Tuesday night, when Henry Pasmore shot and killed Richard Paxton, another bar-keeper. The ill feeling grew over a rivalry in business and the killing occurred in Pasmore's bar room, when Paxton was unarmed and unsuspecting of danger. Pasmore has seen that murderers are the privileged class in this country and did not fear to lay himself liable to the law, which always protects such creatures at the expense of the law-abiding.

A LITTLE ROOSTER, who imagines that he is a very big somebody because he is a son of his father, Senator Voorhees, says that Mr. Cleveland has not distributed the office as he ought to have done and that he intends if he can prevent it, to knock him out of the nomination for a second term. Young Voorhees can prevent it, of course. He's got this country in a sling, he has. Pity indeed that it is true, but it is nevertheless true. Poor Mr. Cleveland, he ought to be shot for not giving the little fellow an office.

THERE are two factions in the National Bank at Kalamazoo, Mich., both of which want to control it. The stock was so evenly divided that less than 10 shares would carry the election of directors either way. A man owning ten shares offered them for sale at auction. They cost him $1,000, but the rival factions fought and bid until the remarkable sum of $44,350 was obtained for them, one share selling as high as $12,000, the highest price ever known.

DOWN in Louisiana two negroes went to the residence of Mrs. Barker for the avowed purpose of criminally assaulting her two daughters, the most beautiful girls of the neighborhood. They were thwarted, however, in their vile purpose, and on being arrested a mob took them in hand and soon had the lecherous scamps swinging from a limb. This is the only way to deal successfully with this class of brutes.

WE are not of course in love with the rapid politics of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, but it is emphatically a newspaper and as such we value it very highly. Nothing of importance escapes its watchful eye and the man who takes it can be sure that he will be kept posted on current events. See prospectus of its weekly edition elsewhere.

BRADY, an ex-Virginia Congressman, who was at one time a faithful lieutenant of Boon Mahone, has issued a letter charging his former master with selling offices and stealing campaign money. This was all right with Brady as long as he profited by it, but when he had to let go the test, Mahone is a dreadful rascal. It was ever thus.

SENATOR VOORHEES' son, who got him self interviewed by an anti Cleveland paper in New York, was so swelled up by the alleged honor that he got on a big drunk and slept in the station house that night. Oh, yes, he'll keep Cleveland from being nominated, no will!

FOREIGNERS continue to arrive at the rate of 50,000 a month. A large per cent. of them are anarchists and that's what the matter with this country.

THE President's thanksgiving proclamation is such a feeling and sensible document that we give it in full elsewhere.

This is the day the old Roman, Allen G. Thurman, spoke of the President in a recent speech: "I have seen a good many presidents in my long life. I have known several of them personally and I have read the history of the administration of them all. I have seen and I know, and I think I know him full well, Grover Cleveland, our President of the United States, and on my honor as a man, who is bound to tell you the truth if ever a man was bound to tell the truth to his fellow men, I don't believe that a more honest, braver, truer man ever filled the presidential chair of the United States."

THE Louisville Commercial is doing a good work in trying to impress upon the incoming legislature the necessities of restricting the evils of local legislation. It has for years been the base of law making, to it being traceable nearly every bad law that has been enacted.

MINISTER BECK, who represents the government at Peru, where she seems to need no representative, at $10,000 a year, is at home. A short time before he was given his position he would have gladly, it is said, taken $10 a week for his time.

It has at last been definitely settled that the author of the dirty "Clara Belle" letters in a Cincinnati paper is a man and his name is Frank File. Even he is ashamed of them, low down and vulgar as he is.

NOTES OF CURRENT EVENTS.

—A portion of tunnel No. 16, on New River hill, Cincinnati Southern railroad, caved in Tuesday night, killing one man and injured several others.

—Webb Ross, a farmer near Paris, has been declared of unsound mind and trustees have been appointed for his estate, which is valued at $100,000.

—The National Republican Committee meets in Washington, December 8, to fix the date and place of holding the next national republican convention.

—Ivan Shelby has been arrested in Ballard county, charged with the murder of Mrs. Stephen Moore, an aged lady of that county, on the 15th inst., and with the robbing of her house of $500.

—The Piedmont Exposition at Atlanta netted a cash profit of $10,000, besides paying $15,000 for the buildings and grounds. This success has caused a plan for a world's fair to be held there in 1890.

—The Kentucky Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows embraces 155 lodges and during the year had 753 additions, leaving, after deducting withdrawals, suspensions, expulsions and deaths, a net gain of 253.

—It is stated on undoubted authority that Gov. Oglesby is disposed to commute the sentence of four of the condemned anarchists to imprisonment for life. A great pressure is being brought to bear on him to this end, and there is a strong probability that there will be only three executions instead of seven. He'd better let the dirty crowd go in a body.

—The election in Baltimore Wednesday resulted in a sweeping victory for the democrats, Latrobe being elected mayor by over 4,000 majority. The total vote polled was 65,075.

—In the late Tennessee election 31 counties voted for and 62 against the prohibition amendment, and it is noteworthy that in nearly every instance those counties that had formerly adopted local option voted in the negative.

Cox, Mayaville, Grand Warder; William White, Louisville, Grand Secretary; George W. Morris, Louisville, Grand Treasurer; John P. Paisner, Mayaville, Grand Representative.

—An Atlanta special says that Gov. Gordon in an interview said that prohibition had been tried through local option in 100 out of 117 counties in the State, and not one county has gone back on its action. He did not hesitate to pronounce the result good. Atlanta had not been damaged. All fears of trade being diverted had proven groundless. The change has noticeably benefited the freedmen.

Thanksgiving Day.

"The goodness and the mercy of God, which have followed the American people during all the days of the past year, claim their grateful recognition and humble acknowledgment. By His omnipotent power He has protected us from war and pestilence, and from national calamity; by His gracious favor the harvest has yielded a generous return to the labor of the husbandman, and every path of honest toil has led to comfort and contentment; by His loving kindness the hearts of our people have been replenished with fraternal sentiment and patriotic endeavor, and by His unerring guidance we have been directed in the way of national prosperity. To the end that we may with one accord, testify our gratitude for all these blessings, I, Grover Cleveland, President of the United States, do hereby designate and set apart Thursday, the 24th day of November next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, to be observed by all the people of the land. On that day let all secular work and employment be suspended, and let our people assemble in their accustomed places of worship, and with prayer and songs of praise give thanks to our heavenly Father for all He has done for us, while we humbly explore the forgiveness of our sins and a continuance of His mercy. Let families and kindred be united on that day, and let their hearts, filled with kindly cheer and affectionate reminiscence, be turned in thankfulness to the source of all their pleasures, and the giver of all that makes the day glad and joyous. And in the midst of our worship and our happiness, let us remember the poor, the needy and the unfortunate; and by our gifts of charity and ready benevolence let us increase the number of those who, with grateful hearts, shall join in our thanksgiving."

Lancaster.

—The ushers at the Duncan Elkin wedding were Messrs. Carlton, of Atlanta, and Owsley, Landrum, Robert Elkin and Denny, who performed their parts well.

—Bird hunters report the crop of quails as being short. Gov. Mason says it isn't long until our sportsmen will have to depend upon the English sparrow for their fun.

—The occupation of the Lancaster coal merchants like that of Othello's is gone. They can't get the coal and in consequence many of our citizens have to go to bed early these cold nights to keep warm. We don't need another railroad, though, at least it looks so since we are doing nothing to secure the Louisville Southern.

—Col. Williams' "Humpty Dumpty" show at the City Hall on Monday night is pronounced the most dismal farce ever seen in Lancaster. It must have been worse than the "Royal Nonesuch," as related by Huckleberry Finn, from what those who attended say of it. [We saved our people this indignity, E.]

—The death of Sam Wheritt, coming as it did so unexpectedly, was quite a shock to his parents and friends. His life while he walked this earth was without spot or blemish. By him was no wrong done. His whole mind seemed to be on religion and morality. Truly it can be said of him, he has gone to that rest which is the glorious heritage of those who love the Lord. The earth will rest lightly on thee, Sammy.

—Judge W. E. Walker left on Wednesday for Dallas, Texas, at which place he will join a party bound for a big hunt in the West. John H. Woodcock went to Cincinnati Tuesday to see the Burns troupe. You can't head John off when there is a treat to be had. Samuel B. Harris, Jr., has a new musical instrument called the Nylophone. The young ladies would do well to call on him and hear him perform thereon. It is a real pleasure. Miss Honeywood Huffman, is visiting at Dr. Huffman's after a long visit to Winchester.

Mrs. W. McKee Duncan and little daughter, of Louisville, were up to attend the marriage of Miss Nellie Duncan. John M. Logan has gone to St. Louis to look after his property in that city of booms.

—The Dancan-Elkin nuptials were consummated at the Presbyterian church Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Elder J. C. Randolph of Danville, and John Dancan, brother of the bride, gave her away. The bridesmaids, five in number, were Misses Jennie Faulkner, Ella Watson, Juliet Gill, Liza Walker and Miss Branton, of Richmond, who all looked as beautiful as the fair bride herself. The best man was Mr. Toner, of Atlanta. The bride, Miss Nellie Dancan, is one of our most beautiful young ladies, and belongs to one of the oldest families in this county. The groom, Dr. Simpson Elkin, is a native of Garrard, but has cast his fortunes in Atlanta, Georgia, where he is a prominent young physician. After lunch at Hon. W. O. Bradley's, the party left for Danville, to take the midnight express for Atlanta. The good wishes of this people go with them. May they live long and be happy.

LONDON, LAUREL COUNTY.

—Asher boys killed a fowlsucker on Lower Sinking creek last week.

—The United States Topographical Engineer Corp have completed their work in Owsley county, and pitched their tents near town, where they will remain until cold weather.

—Miss Mattie Barsley, of Long Branch, was here Sunday. Judge Bireley is in New York and Boston buying goods. Judge R. Boyd left Sunday to commence court at Booneville.

—R. M. Jackson writes us from Atlanta, Georgia, that the meat market is very dull there and many of the stock men there from Lincoln and Boyle counties lack of shipping back.

—W. M. Howard had the examination trial Monday before Judge J. R. Baker, for the murder of a negro named Humphrey at East Bernstadt last week. Howard was bound over in a bond of $5,000 until circuit court.

—The advance agent and bill posters of Wallace's Circus arrived here last Friday and billed the country for 25 miles around. They will stay here with the advance car until the circus arrives, this being their last stand for the season. The employees will be discharged and the animals and paraphernalia will be shipped to Peru, Ind.

HUSTONVILLE, LINCOLN COUNTY.

—Our town is all agog just now over the advent of a photographer. Of course we are all trying to look our prettiest, but our success in that line is not by any means phenomenal. Since Sanford called away our sole-seeing citizen, T. J. Hatcher, and the wind did violence to the smoke stack of our steam mill we have subsided into a state of abnormal quietude, as oppressive as the climate of Sahara.

—Most of our citizens have changed their residences in the last few months. Tuttle has gone to Junction City; W. R. Williams' family moved back from Paris; James Taylor has taken possession of the property purchased of the Allen; Mrs. Catherine Blain and family are preparing to move to Knoxville next week; S. Clay Powell has rented the Cecil property and will open a boarding-house. There is a movement in a matrimonial direction, too, but I dare not mention it yet.

—The ubiquitous drummer is again on the wing and the unsophisticated citizen gives enraptured upon his dazing gyrations. We do not often enjoy the vision of a railroad train, but we can hear the pulsations of the mighty engine as it forces the lifeblood of commerce along the iron arteries of trade and travel. We don't enter much into the conflict between labor and capital because we have no great interest in the one and very little practical admiration for the other. Our people had a natural genius for politics, but they went on the old system—believed that patriotism meant love of country—regarded zeal for the public good as more honorable and more useful than scheming for personal aggrandizement, and thus got left amid the dark ages of human progress. But we turn hopefully to our "young America."

We have a rising race of brilliant promise. Arabs in the saddle, Jesus on wheels, Nimrod in the chase, taking to base ball by intuition, cigarettes by instinct, dudium by contagion and idleness by fatality, they bid fair to keep abreast of the times and, like emulous hunters, be "in at the death" of all antiquated usefulness.

—Stephen Carlisle, of Chicago, beat his wife to death last April, and Monday, after pleading guilty, was sentenced to the State prison for only 18 years. The jury that found such a verdict ought to be hung in a body.

—The general opinion is that the Wallace Carpenter case should be disposed of by filing away the indictment and not subject the people to the cost of another trial, which will terminate in an acquittal or as before in a hung jury. It costs at least $1,000 each time this case is tried; and the proper course, in the opinion of many, is to file it away and let the boy go free—[Somerset Democrat.]

—P. T. Barnum has just purchased an enormous amount of real estate in Bridgeport, Conn. It consists of a great tract of land situated in the centre of the city, and includes five churches, the old Court house, six livery stables, three bank buildings, all the stores on the west side of Main street, and more than 100 private residences and dwellings. The property is worth over $6,000,000.

WRITING from Clifton, Texas, Mr. M. G. Cash, a valued subscriber, says: We read a great deal about drouths in different parts of the country, but we of West Texas can discount them all put together. We did not have a rain sufficient for a good season from May, 1885, till Aug. 30, 1887, since which time we have had almost a deluge. It is needless to say, after reading the JOURNAL so many years, since 1872, I could not afford to be without it now. In that length of time I have not missed more than half a dozen issues. May it continue to have unbounded success.

New Books, One Copy and One Copy

Lost.—A white and red letter book. Any information leading to its recovery will be thankfully received. Leave word at this office.

SOME people don't know yet that John Babin has ceased to run the clerk's office. An order came to him this week to "show license" for a certain couple.

THE Court of Appeals reversed the decision of the Lincoln Circuit Court giving Brakenbach Cable $1,800 damages against the L. & N.

A STRONG effort is being made by Mr. F. W. Mendenhall, of Louisville, to establish a lodge of Knights of Pythias here, which, it is to be hoped, will be successful.

MRS. KIRKPATRICK has discovered a remedy which cured her of consumption and guarantees that it will cure any new case of that disease or curable. If this is true the lady has a fortune within her grasp.

THE new drama "Under a Cloud" is said to be touring tomorrow from first to last. The Page Dramatic Company will produce it at Walton's Opera House next Wednesday night. You should see it by all means.

MR. A. M. FELAND brought his better half to town yesterday, but got so interested in the law suit that he forgot her at night and went as far as L. L. Dawson's before he found out that he had left her.

THE contractor for the repairs to the elevator Mr. J. S. Miller, of Louisville, has completed it a week ahead of contract time and returned to the city yesterday. He says it won't hurt you if it is filled full of shot. He says, E. T. Miller, will remain to put some water and machinery in it.

THE planing mill has fixed feet. Messrs. Forester, Read, W. H. Higgins and A. C. Sims, have entered into partnership and will put up the machinery at once in the old sawmill building near town. The firm is composed of live, energetic and unswerving men and the mill will furnish a large supply of lumber.

HONORABLE.—Arrest Baugh, who lives in the Highland neighborhood, met with a horrible accident Monday. He was cutting wood when a stick flew up and knocked his right eye ball out, it falling to the ground in the dirt. An attempt was made to cut it back but the girl had cut it so much that all efforts to make it stay in its proper place were without avail. The poor fellow suffered excruciating agony but is doing tolerably well.

THIS issue of the INTERIOR JOURNAL is the last that will ever be printed on the Campbell Cylinder Press, that has done us such good service. It will be taken down to-day and shipped to Editor John A. Bell, of Georgetown, to make room for a larger and faster press of the very latest pattern. We could have worked on without a change, but we have found that money invested in the best machinery is money saved both in labor and time. It would take two additional men about all their time to run off our editions now, whereas one man, with another to look occasionally after the engine, will do our entire newspaper printing in five hours each week. The whole paper will be printed at one impression and 50 percent faster than now. We need money to pay for the new press and would thank every one indebted to us to settle at once.

CIRCUIT COURT.—There was an acquittal in nearly every case tried Tuesday. J. W. Adams for carrying concealed weapons, D. A. Baugh, trespass, James and Callaway Nance, breach of the peace; Filbert Richards, two cases, malicious wounding and unlawful shooting, were each and all acquitted by juries of their peers. Charles Sandiford, for failure to work the road, was the only man convicted and he was fined $10. When a forfeiture was taken on Stark Fish's bail bond a remission of the State's part was produced over the signature of Lt. Gov. Hindman, showing that the evil that men do lives after them. The trial of Isaac Gastineau for murder was set for to-day.

Wednesday, Jarret Berry was given 10 days in jail and fined $25 for carrying a concealed pistol. The case of Martin for house breaking was set for the 5th day. The damage suit of Miss Belle Hughes against Dr. J. G. Carpenter for malpractice was set for the 9th day, Nov. 21. Henry Hester for violating the whiskey laws in four cases, was in the court house when they were called and a forfeiture was taken on his bond.

Owing to the absence of his witnesses Mart Smith for the murder of O. Smith obtained a continuance till the next March term.
The oft tried case of Hill & Alcorn and Welch & Sault against A. M. Feland, for a fee, occupied the attention of the court for most of Wednesday and till late yesterday Col. Bradley represented the lawyers and Robert Harding the defendant, both of whom spoke at length. The jury at 4 o'clock returned a verdict for Mr. Feland.
Another old s and by, the case of Todd vs. Bibb, was called last evening and a jury obtained just before adjournment.

The grand jury is hard at work and we believe they will do their duty fully. Already they have returned a number of indictments, several of them for murder.

There was a goodly number of sucking and aged males offered, but those sold brought low prices. —[Idem].

—The steamer Solferino left Philadelphia for a Florida port Sept. 14, 1880. She never reached her destination and was not heard of until Wednesday, when a bottle containing a message, dated Sept. 21, 1880, was picked up on the beach at Darnestable, Mass. The message stated that the vessel was then 50 miles off Key West, with a broken crank pin, and the sea was running high.

The new silver vault of the treasury department will be completed early in November. It will have a capacity of 150,000,000 silver dollars, and the statement is made that there is nearly enough silver now seeking storage to fill it. The vault has been constructed at a cost of $30,000, and is thought to be quite secure.

"Charley," said a young wife, "he there really any such person as the 'hot killer'?" "O, I guess not; I don't know," said Charley, who was reading the morning paper. "Well, Charley, all I wanted to say is please don't go out after dark any more till you find out."

Cruel Persian Punishments.

Cruelty seems inborn with the Persian. I have seen little children of both sexes stoning a poor cur to death and literally hacking a miserable cat to pieces just for the fun of the thing, and without any interference from their parents, often even with their active co-operation.

The death penalty is usually carried out with a view of making the culprit undergo the most horrible tortures and affording a grateful sight to the callous populace. On the Koop Kapu in Teheran, the square in the heart of the city where executions usually take place, a half score of delinquents are often placed on the raised platform, surmounted by the pole painted a brilliant scarlet, and in full sight of the rabble assembled they have their throats cut, their hearts torn out, their ears and noses slit, their tongues pulled out, their eyes seared, or boiling pitch poured over their naked bodies to everybody's great delectation except the parties directly concerned.

Along the highways one meets, stuck in the ground, short, hollow pillars with the upper opening closed with gypsum. Each of these contains a man—a condemned criminal walled up alive. Faint groans may often be heard by passers-by, for this mode of death is slow and very painful; but nobody thinks it worth his while to liberate the poor wretch or to terminate his sufferings by a merciful blow. "Kismet!" they say. "Such is fate."—[Cosmopolitan.]

A Sample of Turkish Justice.

You have often read wondrous and lying tales of justice administered with unerring judgment in Turkey. Here is a true story of Turkish justice: A drover complained to a cross-legged magistrate at Rodosto that he had been robbed of two oxen. Three Turkish gendarmes were sent to recover the property, and soon discovered two peasants going off with two oxen. One of the men was shot dead. The other escaped, and the policeman hastily buried their man and came back in triumph with two oxen. But the man said those oxen had not been stolen from him, and it was plain that the peasant had been shot for driving his own cattle. The situation was uncomfortable, but Turkish diplomacy fixed things. Another man was found to swear he had been robbed of the two oxen, and they were turned over to him, which relieved the gendarmes from guilt. They did not go unpunished, however, for they had buried the dead peasant without first washing the body, which in Turkey is a crime except in case of a soldier killed in battle. For that negligence they were imprisoned.—[Levant Herald.]

Camphor is the product of a tree. Indeed, several sorts of tree yield camphor, the best kind of the camphor trees sometimes grows 300 feet high and 120 feet in circumference. It is a native of China, Formosa and Japan. The leaves are forever green, its flowers are a yellow white, and its fruit not much unlike a half-ripe black currant. Every part of the tree, but especially the flowers, smells strongly of camphor, which is extracted from the stem and branches by distillation. In Borneo there is a camphor tree which, upon being cut down and split, is found to contain small quantities of camphor in natural cavities of the wood. This is highly prized by the Chinese, who are willing to pay fifty times as much as they pay for the ordinary kind. This expensive camphor they principally use for embalming the dead. Besides yielding this valuable ingredient, the camphor tree is greatly valued for the excellent quality of its light and durable wood, which is used not only in building, but for various articles of furniture.

If you have a horse that is in the habit of kicking, put him in a narrow stall that has both sides thickly padded. Suspend a sack filled with hay or straw so that it will strike his heels, and let the horse and sack fight it out. Be sure to have things arranged so that the horse cannot hurt himself. The sack will be victorious every time, and in the end the horse will absolutely refuse to kick the sack or anything else.

The art of paper making has reached a point where a tree may be cut down, made into paper and turned out as a newspaper in 36 hours.

The Fatal Grape Arbor.

The sun had set and it was evening, when they stood beneath the grape arbor. It is a somewhat remarkable fact that evenings and sunsets and grape arbor meetings should occur with unvarying simultaneity.

"Algeron," she whispered, and a piece of chewing gum turned the whisper into a sibilant hiss, "you are here on schedule time."

"You bet," he murmured in reply. "But hark, I heard a footstep."

She harked, as requested, and suddenly grasping his wrist, she said in a terrified whisper: "It is father. Fly! Fly!"

"Gertrude, I have a bunion and I know, alas too well, that were I attempt to fly I would make a farce of it. I must stand my ground."

"Ha," he said, "so it is you, young man, isn't it? Well, how are you? Glad to see you. How's your folk?"

"They're well," gasped Algeron.

"That's good. Well, I'll leave you; but if you and Gertrude take my advice you'll go right up into the parlor. You're likely to even your death of cold out here."

The young man led to the ground motionless. He wrote funny sketches for newspaper.—[Merchant Traveler.]

"CHICKEN SOUP I EVER SEEN"—Not long ago a certain one of Williamsstown's well-known dudes, while in Cincinnati, stopped at a fashionable hotel for dinner.

A finger bowl, filled with warm water was near his plate. He rubbed his way for being there a few seconds and then commenced erubbing in some crackers. This done he reinforced the crackers with pepper and sauce and began to eat. Everybody looked on in amazed silence. After taking a few swallows the duke remarked to his neighbor: "Well, I'll be d—d if this ain't the thinnest soup I ever saw."

The hotel didn't stand more than ten minutes. It disappeared, and passed by the same, wondering much at the cyclone that only demolished one house out of hundreds. You can find out by inquiring a little what was.—[Williamsstown Courier.]

BULLETS THAT HIT AND MISS.—The question has often been raised what proportion of bullets, exchanged by hostile armies, will hit their mark and kill. Difficult as it is to solve it exactly, some approximation may be arrived at from the number of bullets estimated at 2,000,000 which were fired by the Germans in the war of 1870-71.

The French army lost, in the dead and wounded, about 149,000 men. According to this, only one bullet out of 143 fired hit its man, and assuming that on an average one man out of seven hit was actually killed, it would seem that only one out of 1,001 bullets proved fatal. If it is further considered that the guns of the artillery are included in the above estimate, it may be safely said that not over one rifle ball in a thousand fired proved to be fatal.—[Boston Beacon.]

THEY ALL KNEW.—It happened in Sunday school day before yesterday. The subject of human greatness was touched upon and the teacher aptly illustrated by reference to the President, to his responsibilities to the government of this great nation, to the esteem in which he is universally held. Then she wanted to make the application.

"Now, children, great as the President is, wise and all that, much as he is loved and honored, there is one we should love and honor far above President Cleveland. Do you know who that is?" She paused solemnly for an answer and she got it. In concert, instantaneously, every little boy and girl: "Mrs. Cleveland."—[Nashville American.]

Passenger—"Porter, your insurance and intention to your duties are considerable. Perhaps you don't know me?" Porter—"Oh, yes, I know you; you're the president of the road. As now let us discuss your intention to do fact for it's a prominent member of the aristocracy of the road; an I've a view to takin' a m'ltiply on the road; an I'm not pleased wid de tone yo' sees fit to assume to me—Jest I say." Passenger—"I beg your pardon, my dear sir. Have a cigar?"

A German town patron of the line tells me a fair one about his little boy. They have long desired sending him to Sunday school, but postponed the event until they thought he was large enough to understand the teachings there. When they finally sent the little shaver the teacher asked: "Winnie, do you know who the dear Savior is?" "No, ma'am; we've just moved to Germantown an' we hain't got very well acquainted yet," was the startling reply.—[Philadelphia News.]

The counsel for the anarchists holds out no hope from the Supreme Court, and the condemned wretches have about concluded to hang. Spies has the comforting assurance from Nina Van Zandt that she will meet him on the Stygian shore, that they may be ferried across together. This will form a romantically beautiful feature to an otherwise very dolorous but practical event and here's hoping Nina may not flicker at the last moment.—[Louisville Post.]

Mrs. Joan Jacob Astor pays her chief cook $7,000 per annum and then has to content herself with eating the plainest kind of fare. She is troubled with dyspepsia in worst form.

"Waiter," he said, in quite a loud tone of voice, "have you got any champagne on ice?" "Yes, sir." "Well, bring me a bottle—of beer," whispered the young man.

—James P. Murray has been appointed postmaster at Steubenville, Wayne county.

Cleveland and a Little Girl.

Mr. Cleveland evinces great fondness for children. Yesterday morning when he alighted from his carriage at the Minnesota Club House and was in the act of ascending the steps a little girl seven or eight years of age, evidently the child of some working people, pushed her way through the crowd and stepped in front of the President. The great man stopped for a moment and looked down upon the little intruder.

But when he saw the pleading expression in the brown eyes of the child and the little girl murmured out: "Please, sir, I would like to shake hands with the President of the United States," the look of austere dignity on the President's face was suddenly replaced by a smile of intensest gratification. "Certainly, darling," he quickly responded, and the tiny hand was soon encased in his own, while with the other he smoothed back the curls from the dimpled face and patted the blushing cheek.

Fifty years from now that little girl will probably be telling her grandchildren the incident of her meeting with President Cleveland.—[St. Paul Globe.]

"Ebert, sweet love, don't thou think of me when thou art not by my side?" asked a Chicago girl of her best fellow in ten-cent drama tunes, as she gave her new switch a jerk to keep it from falling on a neck.

"Why dost thou doubt me?" he responded tenderly and reproachfully, as he grasped his last fifty cents with the same business astuteness with which he held the waist of the maiden.

"And you long to be with me?"

"I wish I could clasp you always in my arms."

"Clasp me, dear love?"

"Ay, my soul's own."

"Then your wish shall be gratified, my darling. I saw the loveliest diamond bracelet to-day. You can clasp."

But Ebert was no longer there.—[Minneapolis Journal.]

The defeat of President Cleveland for re-nomination to the office he now holds has been removed entirely beyond the range of probability. Day by day he strengthens in the confidence of the people. His sterling honesty; his inflexible determination in doing right; his surprising ability, and above all, his unapproachable cleanness and unadorned unselfishness, all conspire in bringing him close to the hearts of the people. His three years' administration of the affairs of the nation stands out without blemish or blot.

His re-nomination only needs the formal action of a delegated convention. His re-election is no less sure to follow.—[Frankfort Capital.]

A man at Prague, Bohemia, swallowed a small watch with a chain attached, which a small dog slipped in a glass of beer while the man's back was turned. The metal, dissolved by the acids of the stomach, has poisoned that organ and keeps it in an incessant state of fever, making him unable to retain food. The man has been disabled from the Munich hospital as incurable, and now lies in a hospital at Prague, kept alive by food artificially injected, waiting to see whether the watch will all dissolve or he will die first.

There are now cables on almost every sea and ocean bed, the total length of wire laid being nearly 114,000 nautical miles. There are nine cables connecting Europe with America, the first that was laid dating from 1858. So great, also, has the advance been in the operative aspect of cable telegraphy that practically no more difficulty is felt in repairing submarine lines than in attending to defects in those on land. It is seldom any serious derangement of the telegraphic system takes place. When it does it is of comparatively brief duration.—[Public Opinion.]

Travelers report the discovery of a race of pygmies in Africa. They inhabit the country lying on the south branch of the Congo and are said to be brave and more than a match for the giants who inhabit the country in their immediate neighborhood. The real pygmies reach a stature of about four feet, while the females are much smaller. The men are good hunters and trappers and manage to support their families in considerable luxury.

Every well-informed man knows that any average rate of taxation upon imported goods which would enable the government to realize the amount of revenue it would be compelled to raise from that source would more than compensate for the difference between the cost of labor here and in other manufacturing countries.—[Speaker Corlies.]

Altogether the prospects are not flattering. With the trades unions fighting the order, the organization split into factions, arrayed against each other, and the political heaven beginning to work to the surface, the Knights of Labor, if not already on the brink of dissolution, are not far from it.—[Post.]

The Interstate Commerce Commission may not be worth much in settling railroad questions, but it has developed into a good scheme for reducing the surplus. It has spent its $100,000 appropriation and is not half through its year's work.—[Oswego-Admirer.]

A poet sent an editor a contribution, entitled: "Why do I live?" The editor answered: "Because you sent your contributions by mail instead of bringing them in person."—[Northern Eagle.]

A rich gold mine is reported as having been discovered about 40 miles north of Grand Marais, Minn., the nuggets taken from which indicate a field of unusual richness and value.
